Fall National College Media Convention

presented virtually Oct. 22-24, 2020 • collegemediaconvention.org

We won't get to meet in Atlanta, but it'll be a peach of a convention

The Fall National College Media Convention convenes virtually Oct. 22-24.

This preview introduces you to the nation's largest gathering of college journalists, media students and their advisers. It gives you a taste of what's ahead — vibrant programming that will connect us, with even more professional speakers than our previous conventions.

Presented on the Pathable platform, the convention will unite collegiate-media programs with more than 100 learning sessions, keynote speakers, critiques and consultations, awards ceremonies and vendor exhibits.

And while we can't be together in person, there is a fringe benefit for this virtual convention: No agonizing over multiple sessions at the time. You'll have access to breakout sessions for two weeks after the event.

The convention offers training, networking advice and tips about student-produced media across all aspects and all platforms of college media, from rapidly evolving digital content to breaking news to newspaper, broadcast, yearbook and magazine journalism.

The session topics are as timely as today's news. Covering protests, the pandemic and the elections. Engaging readers whose voices have not been heard. Developing revenue sources and marketing campaigns to strengthen our finances.

Even more timely are our keynoters: Brian Stelter, of CNN, and Monique Judge, of The Root.

Besides the sessions, our vendor sponsors and educational institutions will exhibit their services to the collegiate-media market.

And don't miss the CMA Audio and Film Festival Thursday night.

It's three days of learning and fun and friends. Have a great convention!

Navigating Pathable's convention platform

Here's a brief introduction to the convention's digital platform on Pathable.

It's quite similar to a convention mobile app, with sessions, speakers and exhibits at your fingertips.

The convention platform's front page presents all convention special events, from the virtual trade show to the awards programs to the CMA Film and Audio Festival.

Looking for ways to connect?

The convention platform allows you to interact through messages and conversations.

And share your student media and gather ideas in our engagement center.

The convention agenda will be your go-to page. It's organized by dates and times, with color-coded program tracks.

Pathable converts the schedule to your time zone — a big help for all of us.

Convention speakers are compiled for easy reference so you can find when a speaker is scheduled.

Speaking of profiles, be sure to update your profile with your photo and bio. It helps folks put a face with a name.

For questions on Pathable, please reach out to Brittany Marinovich, bmarinovich@kellencompany.com.

acp CLIPS & CLICKS CONTEST

ACP's new student competition launches this fall

Open to all ACP members, Clips & Clicks honors current work in multiple categories for student and publication achievement.

The fall-semester competition opens soon and closes in mid-December, with fall winners announced in late January.

The spring-semester contest opens in mid-December and closes in mid-May, with winners announced in early June.

The cost is $10 per entry, with no limit on entries. Any student on staff at an ACP-member publication is eligible.

Go to Clips & Clicks on acp.studentpress.org.

Summer workshop

The challenges are unprecedented, and you need help — and trusted advice — going into the year ahead.

Put the College Media Mega Workshop to work for you.

Sponsored in July by ACP, CMA and CMBAM, this virtual workshop is a meeting of the minds. It has trained hundreds of collegiate journalists and advisers, and it's prepared them for their challenges going into the academic year.

Past workshops have served up to 500 registrants at the Twin Cities campus of the University of Minnesota, with residence-hall accommodations available for affordability.

The 2021 virtual workshop, like the one in 2020, will feature one-week tracks in a two-week timeframe.

Past workshops have offered specific tracks to prepare you —
