Championship Celebration

April 3, 2022

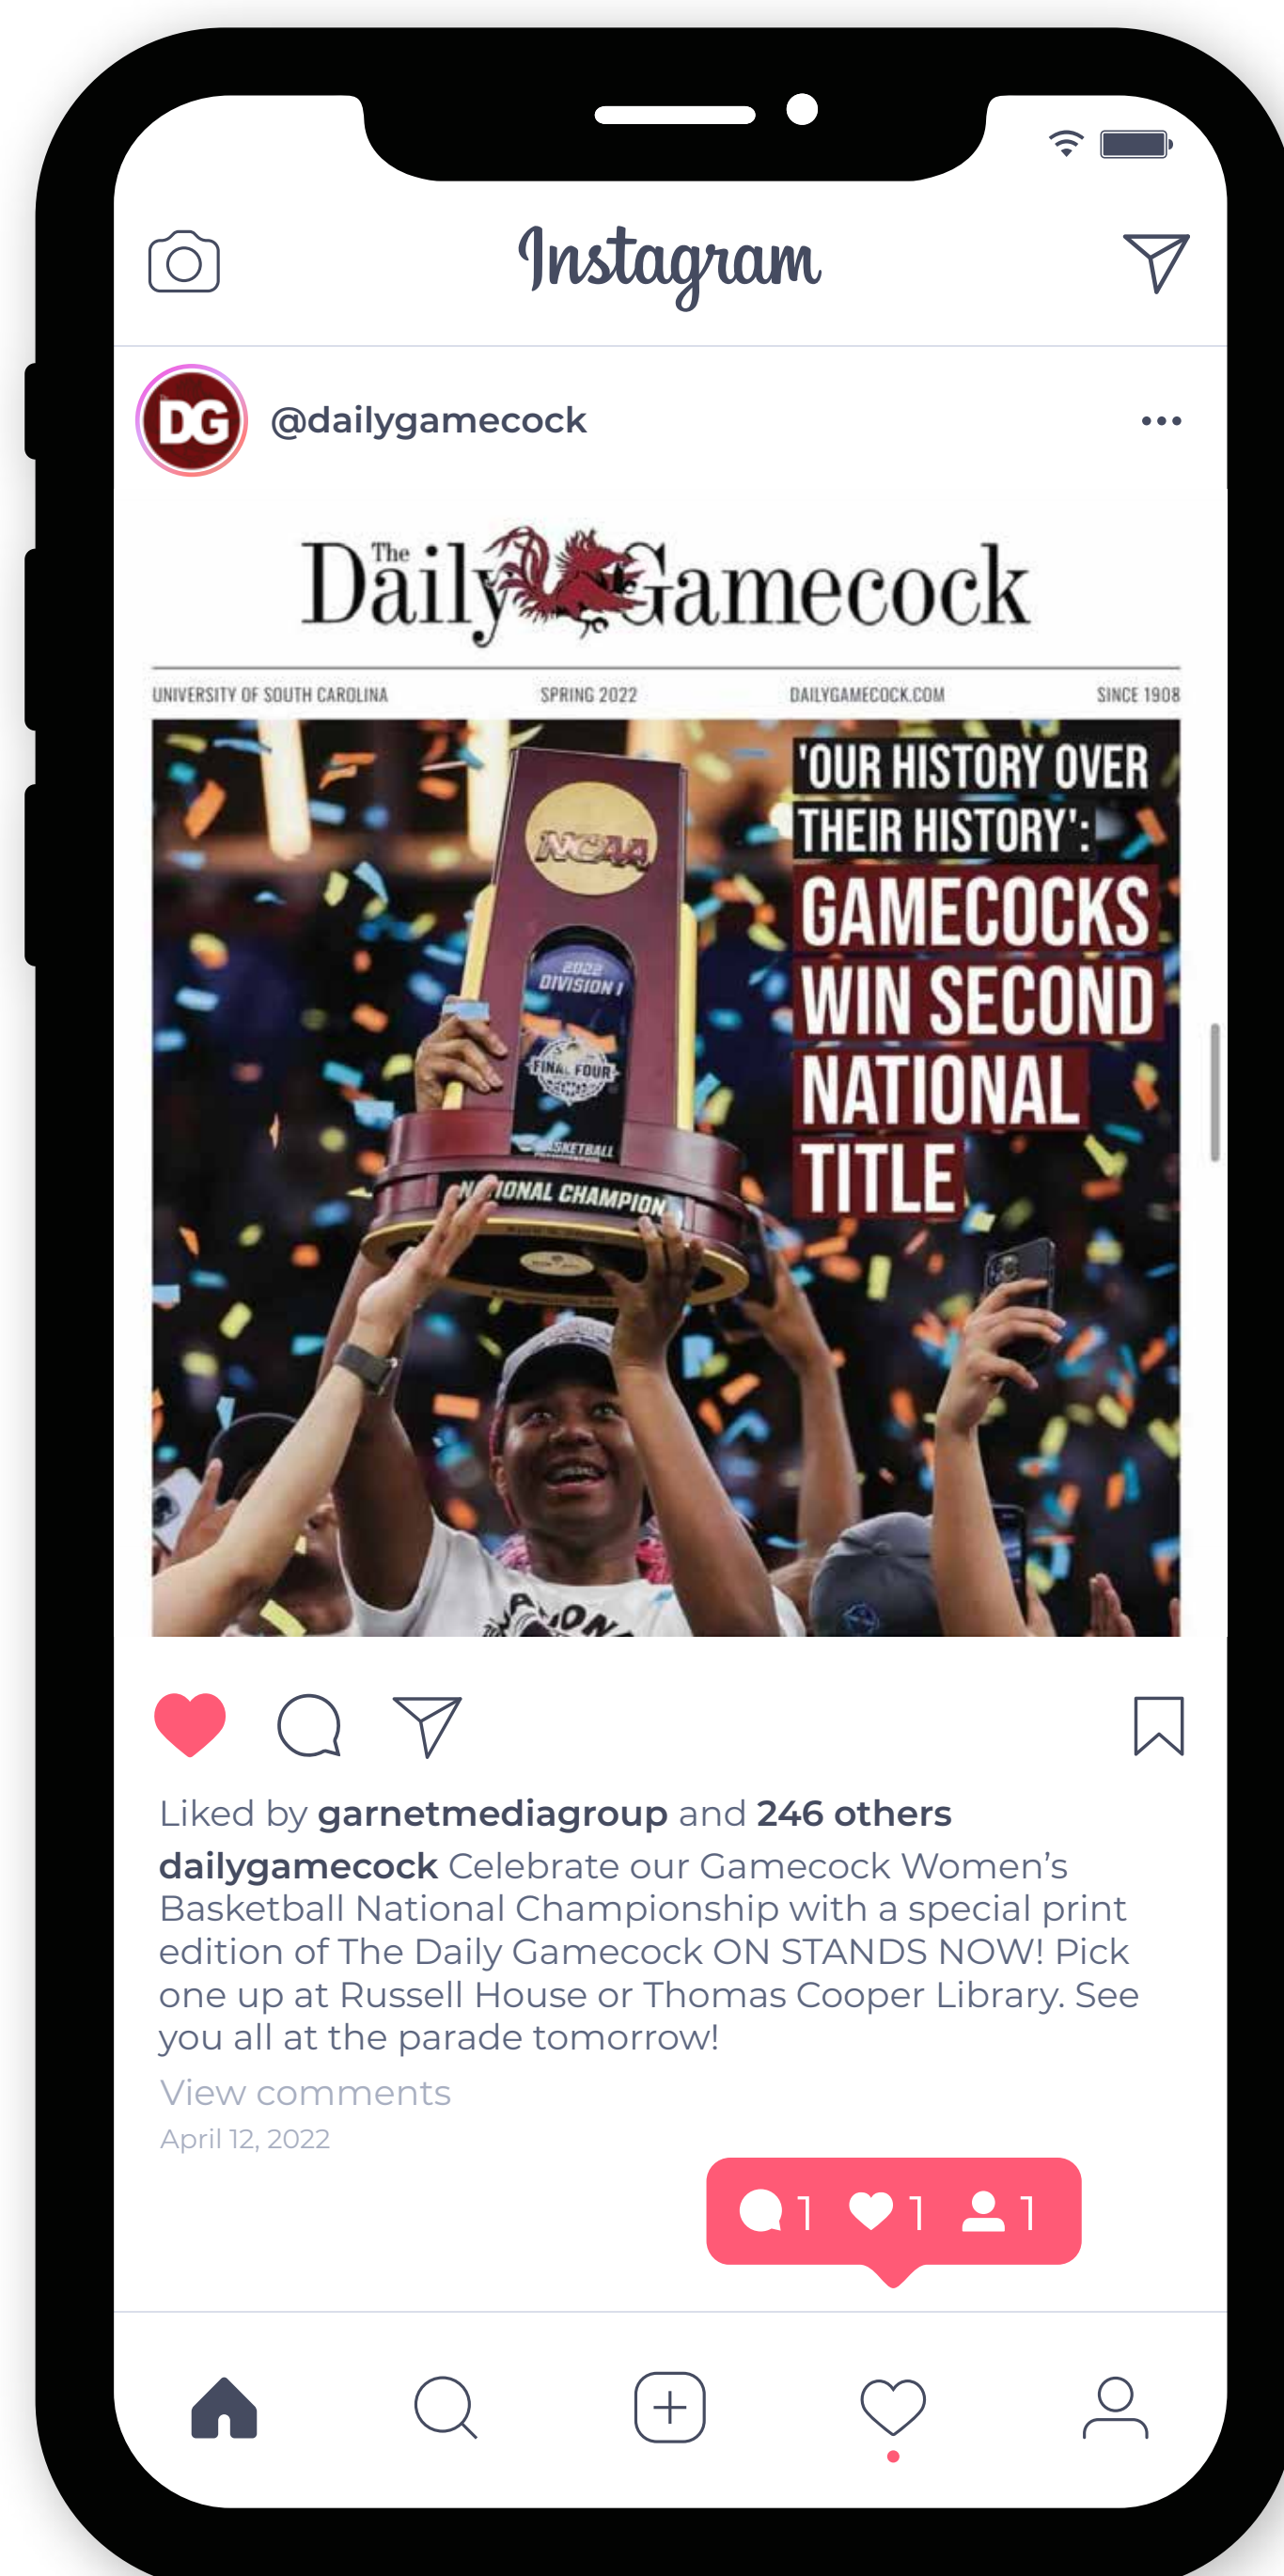

dailygamecock Columbia came to life when the South Carolina women's basketball team clinched its 64-49 national championship victory over UConn on Sunday night.

Students lined the Thomas Cooper Library fountain throughout the fourth quarter, watching the end of the game on their phones. As the final buzzer went off, marking head coach Dawn Staley's second national title, students stormed the fountain.

"There's no other energy ... but explosiveness, intensity. Just like how our girls played with explosive intensity tonight, we have explosive intensity here celebrating their win," one student said.
