

my 7-eleven order is...

"Blue Raspberry Slurpee, salt and vinegar chips, and Sour Patch Kids" Carter Te Slaa (9)

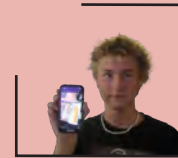

"Large Cherry Slurpee, Oreos, gummy worms, and peanut butter crackers" Aubrey Brandt (10)

"BBQ Pringles and SweeTARTS Ropes" Natalee Zbinden (10)

"Fairlife Chocolate Protein Shake, Munchies chips, and Gushers" Connor Schroder (11)

"Bang Energy and a singular taquito" Aidan Myers (11)

"Mango Slurpee and BBQ Lay's Chips" Trace Oettinger (11)

"Red Gatorade" Mateo Saldana (10)

camp champs

senior reese hafner starts a youth football summer camp.

While many other students were off-campus over the summer, senior Reese Hafner was running a football camp at DP. He created schedules, reached out to parents, and led a team of volunteers from the varsity football team to coach the campers. "It was basically totally student-planned," said Reese, "We had a bunch of players come in, volunteer, and help out, but in terms of planning and advertising, I pretty much did it all." The camp had fifteen kids between third and eighth grade. The coaches led the kids through various activities and games. "We would start with drills," said Reese, "but we'd all warm up together, just throw to start to practice while everyone got there." They also held competitions and gave prizes to the winners.

"It was really good to see a smile on a kid's face."

Reese's primary goal for the program was to make it accessible to anyone interested. "We made it free," said Reese, "and I think my goal by doing that was to get the people who didn't have access to a camp or who wouldn't be able to attend it." Reese took on a big responsibility in running the camp. "I think another big part of it was stepping into the adult shoes of the logistical part of a camp, rather than just showing up to help out," said Reese. "I had to get the field approved, I had to make a consent form for everyone to fill out." It was also very fulfilling, according to Reese. "It was really good to see a smile on a kid's face or the end of a competition when a player would make a really good catch."

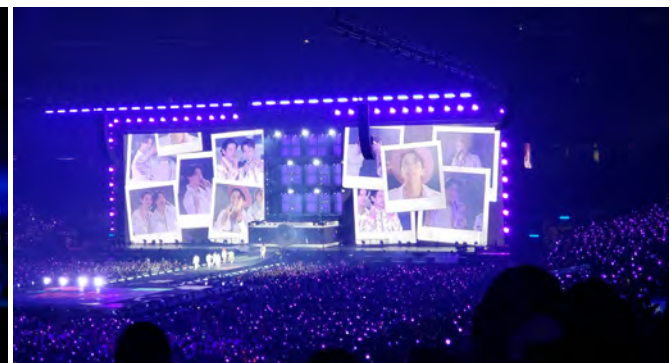

This is Reese's last year here, but he hopes the camp will continue on after he graduates. "We had a couple of juniors out helping and I think we made it clear to them that we want them to carry it on," said Reese, "I think they want to carry it on as well. Hopefully it becomes a tradition."

hyped up: Camp leader Reese Hafner cheers with Ryan Marsh, Brett Jones and Ryan Orozco at the youth football camp. Players from the football team volunteered as coaches. happy camper: Alexander Diaz runs on the field. Campers played games and had competitions. leading by example: Immanuel Trujillo shows the players a drill. They practiced from nine to noon everyday. practice makes perfect: Seth Orozco participates in drills during camp. They worked on throwing and scrimmaging. teamwork makes the dream work: Coaches Cairo Rios, Jacob Hernandez, Daniel Johnston, Diesel Huerta, and JuanCarlos Contreras talk during practice. They planned each day's activities themselves. All photos by Diego Vargas Martinez.

walls kept tumbling down: Bastille plays at a concert. Eoghan Gloster attended with Clara Rickey. Photo by Eoghan Gloster. may I have this dance: Charlotte Choi attends the BTS Permission to Dance On Stage concert in Las Vegas. "It was my first concert ever and definitely set the bar high," said Charlotte. Photo by Charlotte Choi. looks so perfect: Luke Hemmings sings at the 5 Seconds of Summer concert. Abigail Gonzalez went to the concert with her mom and sister. Photo by Abigail Gonzalez. blow your mind: Dua Lipa performs onstage at her concert. Charlotte Haimerl attended both a Dua Lipa concert and a Lady Gaga concert this summer. Photo by Charlotte Haimerl.

show on the road

concerts become a part of some students' summer break.

Over the summer, many students went to concerts with their friends and family. The Santa Barbara Bowl hosted Olivia Rodrigo, the Chicks, and Rebelution this year. Sophomore Sophia Pixley attended a Mac DeMarco concert with sophomore Mitchell Maskrey. "I think when [Mac DeMarco] played 'On the Level,'" said Sophia, "it was really cool how the music started and the crowd and everyone realized what song it was."

Another student, senior Abigail

Gonzalez, went to a 5 Seconds of Summer concert. Abigail has been a fan since the age of nine. "I was a fan of One Direction," said Abigail, "and when I was nine I went to a One Direction concert and 5 Seconds of Summer opened for them and I instantly liked their music." Abigail went to the 5 Seconds of Summer performance with her sister and mom. "The best part of the concert was when they were reading signs from the crowd and it was really funny," said Abigail.

sounds like the best songs of summer

"I probably listened to Bad Bunny the most, Steve Lacy of course, and a bit of Broadway and TV shows." Jessica Avila-Ruiz (11)

"Me Porto Bonito," Bad Bunny

"My friend Zoey drives me around in her car and we listen to the Smiths like we are in some indie movie. We are not." Allison Brodie (12)

"Heaven Knows I'm Miserable Now," The Smiths

"I had a twenty-minute commute that I needed to fill up with some sort of noise... What started as me ironic-buying the CD spiraled into me knowing all the words to nearly every song on the album." Kiana Torrijos (12)

"Buddy Holly," Weezer

