

Promise of Future

FIONA VAN ALLEN * mixed media

the weather like feelings

MADDYTA * poetry

Something I have found is that Peoples emotions are like the weather Changes every day and how they are treated The weather because of climate change and that's what we've done Our parents try to shape us into the mold Starts as we are kids we weren't supposed to notice
 The sunshine we were told always had to be shining on our faces and onto others Their smile is like, sun You can always tell when people start to act different
 The seasons are changing When their whole mood is ruined because someone said one thing Because they couldn't just keep it in their own clouds

 People get hurt and pretend they're fine because we are told the sun always looks better shining
 That is what our society wants
 The perfect weather Parents to child taught only sunshine can show through Then rains start All because that one person couldn't share their sunshine but a storm Rain, is unpredictable, Rain will always be there hiding in the dark clouds even if the sunshines Rain can come from anywhere
 But rain feels cool Rain helps the flowers grow Rain is the earths way to grow the Earth

The tears that run heal our wilting flowers But it won't always last, rain will always be temporary
 But we need the rain and sun
 We need those feelings,
 The weather is like feelings.

NOTE FROM THE CREATOR:

I made this because I have had a lot of people asking me how I always have a smile on when I come to school and my friends always ask how I stay so peppy. In reality a person can seem happy and cheery but they can be going through something you truly never know! This piece is just about the normal feelings someone can go through happiness and sadness and there is nothing wrong with feeling however you feel.