POEM BY SOPHIE WIRTH
DESIGN BY KOEN MYERS

one day you're seventeen you're seventeen; how could this be?
you swear you were just on the playgroup,
on those swings.
but now you're on the brink of everything.
although still viewed as young and naive everyone is telling you what to do and who to be.
you are told who to become even if that's not who you want to be.

and yet you still try to take their advice
you still try to please.
you try to plan for someday.
someday you'll be who you want to be.
and then quietly, without you ever really noticing someday is today.
and then someday is yesterday
and this is your life.
suddenly, you're no longer seventeen
how could that be?
