First Days of School

As a student-run yearbook program, we're all about capturing the moments that define our year—starting with Day One. The yearbook only comes out once a year but, our feed allows us to post pictures, previewing the yearbook and some of the coverage contained within.

Boys Golf

Being connected to student activities means recognizing the hard work and dedication our athletes put in. These are our classmates, teammates, and friends—representing our school with pride. By sharing their season highlights, we celebrate their achievements. Our staff attends matches to capture these moments, capturing their season, to be remembered for years come.

Pep Rally

The Winter Pep Rally is one of the most anticipated events of the school year, bringing students together to celebrate school spirit and support our teams. Using social media allows us to highlight the energy, effort, and excitement that go into making it such a memorable day. Pep rallies allow us to see how vast and diverse our school community is, by allowing groups who might not always be highlighted on a normal basis.

tesseraeybk Yesterday, Feb. 28, we had a pep rally to prepare for tonight's Winter Formal. The freshmen and seniors both came into the event with one spirit stick. The juniors won decorations, and the seniors won the lip sync battle and musical chairs. The sophomores won the relay race and the freshmen got three spirit sticks during wrecking ball. Good job Hawks, keep the school spirit up!!

“Evil Dead: the Musical”

With so many students involved, the school’s drama club productions are a major part of the year at CPPHS. The first performance marks the result of months of hard work, from acting and singing to building sets and running tech. Sharing it on social media lets us celebrate the talent, dedication, and teamwork that bring the show to life—and gives the cast and crew the recognition they deserve.

Sean Holland Concert

Sean Holland's performance for the Special Needs program and YAC was more than just entertainment—it was a moment of connection, inclusion, and joy. This post helps highlight the kindness and positivity Sean brought to the event, showing how one person's talents can make a real impact. It also gives the broader school community a glimpse into the meaningful experiences happening every day at CPPHS, reminding us of the power of music, support, and shared moments.

tesseraeybk On Friday, Feb. 14, Sean Holland performed in the theater in collaboration with the Youth Activation Committee. Students listened and danced along to his concert and had a meet-and-greet photo opportunity with Holland afterwards.

A special shoutout to one of our amazing supporters, Oak's Sports Bar!
