

NOW TRENDS

Los Angeles is known as a fashion hub, and LMU lives up to that reputation. Throughout the school year, students dressed in trendy and eye-catching outfits.

WORDS D. LOYNES JR DESIGN S. SANCHEZ PHOTOS M. ANDERSON + K. JOHNSON

“I like to have fun pieces, but then it’s hard to find something to go with it when they’re really unique. It’s like a challenge and a puzzle.”

- Kylie Clifton
Journalism

ALYSSA FABIO
(THEATRE ARTS)

BEN ENGLAND
(BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION
UNDECLARED)

DANIELA MARQUEZ (POLITICAL SCIENCE)
& ETHAN CHAN (MARKETING)

DING

“I’m really big into vintage fashion. I think everything that I’m wearing is from the 1980s. This [stuff] has been fashionable since the ’80s and it still is.”

- Donovan Decano
Film and TV Production

SPENCER OKORONKWO (MARKETING)

GLASSES In Los Angeles' bright and sunny weather, sunglasses were a popular choice amongst students. Some students even wore their shades indoors.

CAROLINE THOMPSON
(THEATRE ARTS)

MAUI MALONE (FINANCE)

BAGS Tote bags were a popular alternative to backpacks, as they hold textbooks, laptops and more. Students also preferred them for their lighter weight.

REAGAN EZEKIEL
(PSYCHOLOGY)

AVICARO HUNTER
(PSYCHOLOGY)

SHOES Cowboy boots were the current shoe trend, matching with several different outfits. The style rose to prominence for their comfort and durability.

