BAILEY BRUSH

ACP ADVERTISING & BUSINESS AWARDS
BEST GRAPHIC DESIGNER (ADVERTISING)
COVER LETTER
Dec. 11, 2023

Dear ACP Awards Committee,

I am writing to express my enthusiasm for design as I submit for ACP’s “Best Graphic Designer” award. As a multidisciplinary artist and graphic designer currently pursuing visual arts at Western Kentucky University, I believe that my commitment to design reflects not just a pursuit but a genuine passion.

While my interests have ebbed and flowed over time, my fascination with art, design, and creativity has been a constant force throughout my entire life. I love that design not only offers a way for me to express myself, but also allows me to contribute to the good in the world by solving other people’s problems and telling their stories. I also love how the diverse nature of design has allowed me to connect with so many people and explore different industries. My decision to major in design was driven by my passion for creativity and ultimately my desire to blend artistic expression with strategic thinking. The intersection of creativity and problem-solving is what captivates me most about design and motivates me to continually refine and expand my skills in the field.

My creative process is one of research, empathy, and intuition. I like to begin projects with developing thorough research and an understanding of the objectives and target audience so that every design decision I make is purposeful. Sketching, mind-mapping, experimenting, and iterating ideas often helps me develop effective solutions. Empathy and intuition also steer many of my creative decisions and empower me to understand the intricate needs and perspectives of users. They help me make design choices that evoke emotions and foster connections on a personal level amid a technology-driven world. My approach to design is often influenced by my source of inspiration, which stems from a mix of everyday objects, contemporary art, and evolving cultural trends. My style of simple forms and graphics is often inspired by the simple details seen in everyday objects and events in life. I believe that being aware of the evolving trends in both societal dynamics and artistic expression also gives my designs a feeling of relevancy and keeps my work interesting and captivating.

I believe designers play an important role in a media organization because they have the ability to shape both the visual identity of the organization's brand and the narrative of the content that is being published. Designers play a crucial role in preserving brand awareness, encouraging audience engagement, and enabling successful communication in a time where visual information is so prevalent and competitive across print and digital platforms. Designers ensure that messages not only reach their intended audience but also resonate meaningfully, which can contribute to the success and impact of the media organization.

My overarching career goal is to grow as an impactful and effective designer, using my skills in graphic design and illustration to serve, inspire, and connect with others. More specifically, I hope to continue working with a diverse range of people and businesses to develop brand identities that tell and amplify their stories. In pursuing these goals, my aim is to contribute to the broader realm of visual communication and positively impact the creative industry.

Thank you for considering my submission. I look forward to continue contributing my skills and passion to the field of graphic design and to potentially be recognized among the talents in the creative industry.

Sincerely,

Bailey Brush
LETTER OF RECOMMENDATION
Dec. 9, 2023

Dear ACP Awards Committee,

It is my pleasure to provide this letter of recommendation for Bailey Brush. I advise Cherry Creative, a branded content studio within Western Kentucky University’s student publications. Bailey has been part of the Cherry Creative staff for the last three years.

Bailey joined staff her sophomore year as a quiet, timid designer. Since then, she has grown and flourished. She quickly proved her skills and abilities as an exceptional designer and ascended to a leadership position, being hired as the design editor for her junior year. Now, as a senior, Bailey is co-director of Cherry Creative, leading a staff of 20 students.

One moment I’ll always remember with Bailey happened last spring, a few days before the press deadline for our Best of the Hill publication. As design editor, Bailey was responsible for the overall look of the magazine, which lists winners in more than 50 categories, as well as ensuring we had well-designed ads for all clients who wanted to use our services. The sales staff had outdone themselves, surpassing previous sales for this publication, which then meant there were a plethora of ads for Bailey and her staff to design in short time. One afternoon, as several of us stood around Bailey’s desk each bringing different requests, her eyes seemed to keep opening wider and wider, until she finally said, “It’s a good thing I know how to design fast.”

Not only does Bailey design fast, she designs top-quality work. As a designer, Bailey brings a creative flair while also showing an exquisite attention to detail. Bailey holds herself to a high standard. Clients and colleagues alike often rave about her work. She has set a high bar for what can be done by our student media company, which future designers will be challenged to maintain.

As a leader, Bailey has continued to shine. We always have a plethora of projects underway at any given time, but Bailey has not let that fluster her. She has impeccable organization skills to stay on top of everything that needs to be accomplished, and no matter what comes up, she has always been ready and willing to tackle the next challenge. Bailey stays focused and works fast to deliver what needs to be done, while sticking to a high quality of work. I admire her drive and motivation. But, above all, I have appreciated Bailey’s willingness to help other students. As a design editor, she took time to help her staff of designers grow and develop their skills. She took the time to show them new techniques, teach them new software, and patiently provide feedback. This year, Bailey has helped the new design editor adjust to her new position, and Bailey has come her best to assist the design editor with learning the organizational and staff management aspects of a leadership position. That learning is an important part of student media, and I am grateful for how wholeheartedly Bailey has embraced that.

Bailey has also gained additional experience through our fellowship program, which offers paid positions in the summer for our students. In 2022, she had a fellowship position with Evansville Living magazine, where our fellowship partners had nothing but good things to say about her work. During the summer of 2023, Bailey worked as our in-house design fellow on several products we produce during the summer. She flexed her creative muscles with the additional time summer provides, creating both stellar ads for clients and an excellent design for our freshman welcome magazine.

While I know I can count on Bailey to do whatever needs to be done, I can also count on her to be a delight to work with. I have enjoyed getting to know her over the last three years. Not only is Bailey’s design work worthy of recognition by your organization, but so too is the character she displays. If I can answer any further questions, please call me at 270-745-3055 or email me at samual.olenburg@wku.edu.

Sincerely,

Sam Oldenburg
