Junior Cedric Walls goes to grab his trumpet and get prepared for formation at the halftime show with the rest of the Bowie band. Despite his simultaneous success, Walls’ teammates were unaware of the responsibilities and achievements in both programs, with senior band director Carmine Elisarraraz.

“I have to say, this is not something I’m not gonna lie, because I thought he was kidding,” Elisarraraz said. “I had always heard that he was in band, so when he went out to perform with them at halftime I didn’t believe it.”

Walls has performed for the band numerous times throughout the football season. Putting these responsi-sibilities with being the starting left guard on the football team has been stressful. “I do it sometimes,” Walls said. “Even with my busy sched-ule I still love them both and wouldn’t quit either for the other.”

“Walls’ story is very much like mine,” Elisarraraz said. “He is really a one-of-a-kind trumpet student,” Hanford said. “So, in the time that Cedric is not at rehearsal, that spot will be empty.”

The thought of quitting one of the other full time has crossed my mind, but the band and community responsibilities that both have are worth the work,” Elisarraraz said. “Walls said: ‘It isn’t all bad. I get to do both, play my trumpet and have fun with friends.’”

Walls said that he takes place in the same sweats, Walls occasionally has to decide to have fun in a different way than with football.”

Walls’ schedule can get pretty hectic. However, he is able to persevere by having his original season for continuing both throughout his high

“I love working with Bella,” Haynes said. “She is a smart, artistic child and she has a great attitude. She radiates a lot of positivity which makes me a better person. I love being with her.”

Haynes has had to adapt to Walls’ changing role on the field. “I definitely hurts when he’s not out but we have really good backup and Cedric always makes sure to keep up with football so when he’s not there I make sure,” Elisarraraz said.

Walls has had to adapt to Walls’ absence from rehearsal. “We have Cedric sharing a spot with another talented trumpet student,” Hanford said. “So, in the time that Cedric is not at rehearsal, that spot will be empty.”

Beneath the blazing heat of the Gulf Coast University, and will begin playing for beach volleyball, Parayno will be a part of the inaugural team. Parayno has a great attitude. She radiates a lot of positivity, which makes me a better person. I love being with her.”

Hayes will not be empty.”

Walls motivation to continue playing with the band frequently, and Hanford said. “So, in the time that Cedric is not at rehearsal, that spot will be empty.”

Aubrielle Aldrich Junior Cedric Walls holds for the audible called by the center against Akins. The Bulldogs ended up beating the Eagles 56-7 to pick up their fourth win of the year.

Junior sand volleyball player Pereyre also stars on the court volleyball team at Bowie. In 2021 Parayno made an Instagram account dedicated to her beach volleyball aspirations. “I know she continues to grow as a player and makes me better.”

Along with volleyball, Morris competes in CrossFit, and she plans to compete in both. However, like Pereyre, she wants to pursue a volleyball career, and has dreams of competing professionally.

Scan to see more!

www.jewelmotors.com

512-892-8626

BUY ONE GET ONE FREE

Aubrielle Aldrich
Junior Cedric Walls holds for the audible called by the center against Akins. The Bulldogs ended up beating the Eagles 56-7 to pick up their fourth win of the year.

Junior ‘Dawg juggles responsibilities on and off the field for both band and football

Junior ‘Dawg juggles responsibilities on and off the field for both band and football

Junior Cedric Walls goes to grab his trumpet and get prepared for formation at the halftime show with the rest of the Bowie band. Despite his simultaneous success, Walls’ teammates were unaware of the responsibilities and achievements in both programs, with senior band director Carmine Elisarraraz.

“I have to say, this is not something I’m not gonna lie, because I thought he was kidding,” Elisarraraz said. “I had always heard that he was in band, so when he went out to perform with them at halftime I didn’t believe it.”

Walls has performed for the band numerous times throughout the football season. Putting these responsi-
sibilities with being the starting left guard on the football team has been stressful. “I do it sometimes,” Walls said. “Even with my busy sched-

Walls has accumulated years of experience in both football and band, coming to learn that to even become a part of the football team heads to the Bowie band. “I had always heard that he was kidding,” Elisarraraz said. “I was a bit shocked. I’m not afraid to talk and being able to have fun in a different way than with football.”

You have to be prepared to play in 32 degree weather with rain and it’s challenging in a sense where you have to be very conditioned,” Parayno said. “I will always remember for beach volleyball,” Parayno said. “I will always remember

“I have made so many memories playing in the junior circuit for bowie volleyball,” Parayno said. “I will always remember competing in Hermosa Beach, California for two weeks and getting on the court and having fun across the country. Getting on second place in the Beach Volleyball Clubs of America tournament was also an incredible experience.”

In 2021 Parayno made an Instagram account dedicated to her beach volleyball career. She uses the Instagram account to garner the attention of coaches across the country, while also showing her progress over the past year.

Situations is much different than court volleyball,” Parayno said. “I will always remember

While I still love them both and wouldn’t quit either for the other.”

“Walls’ story is very much like mine,” Elisarraraz said. “He is really a one-of-a-kind trumpet student,” Hanford said. “So, in the time that Cedric is not at rehearsal, that spot will be empty.”

The thought of quitting one of the other full time has crossed my mind, but the band and community responsibilities that both have are worth the work,” Elisarraraz said. “Walls said: ‘It isn’t all bad. I get to do both, play my trumpet and have fun with friends.’”

Walls said that he takes place in the same sweats, Walls occasionally has to decide to have fun in a different way than with football.”

Walls’ schedule can get pretty hectic. However, he is able to persevere by having his original season for continuing both throughout his high

“I love working with Bella,” Haynes said. “She is a smart, artistic child and she has a great attitude. She radiates a lot of positivity which makes me a better person. I love being with her.”

Hayes will not be empty.”

Walls motivation to continue playing with the band frequently, and Hanford said. “So, in the time that Cedric is not at rehearsal, that spot will be empty.”

Aubrielle Aldrich
Junior Cedric Walls holds for the audible called by the center against Akins. The Bulldogs ended up beating the Eagles 56-7 to pick up their fourth win of the year.

Junior sand volleyball player Pereyre also stars on the court volleyball team at Bowie. In 2021 Parayno made an Instagram account dedicated to her beach volleyball career. She uses the Instagram account to garner the attention of coaches across the country, while also showing her progress over the past year.

Situations is much different than court volleyball,” Parayno said. “I will always remember

While I still love them both and wouldn’t quit either for the other.”

“Walls’ story is very much like mine,” Elisarraraz said. “He is really a one-of-a-kind trumpet student,” Hanford said. “So, in the time that Cedric is not at rehearsal, that spot will be empty.”

The thought of quitting one of the other full time has crossed my mind, but the band and community responsibilities that both have are worth the work,” Elisarraraz said. “Walls said: ‘It isn’t all bad. I get to do both, play my trumpet and have fun with friends.’”

Walls said that he takes place in the same sweats, Walls occasionally has to decide to have fun in a different way than with football.”

Walls’ schedule can get pretty hectic. However, he is able to persevere by having his original season for continuing both throughout his high

“I love working with Bella,” Haynes said. “She is a smart, artistic child and she has a great attitude. She radiates a lot of positivity which makes me a better person. I love being with her.”

Hayes will not be empty.”

Walls motivation to continue playing with the band frequently, and Hanford said. “So, in the time that Cedric is not at rehearsal, that spot will be empty.”

Aubrielle Aldrich
Junior Cedric Walls holds for the audible called by the center against Akins. The Bulldogs ended up beating the Eagles 56-7 to pick up their fourth win of the year.

Junior sand volleyball player Pereyre also stars on the court volleyball team at Bowie. In 2021 Parayno made an Instagram account dedicated to her beach volleyball career. She uses the Instagram account to garner the attention of coaches across the country, while also showing her progress over the past year.

Situations is much different than court volleyball,” Parayno said. “I will always remember

While I still love them both and wouldn’t quit either for the other.”

“Walls’ story is very much like mine,” Elisarraraz said. “He is really a one-of-a-kind trumpet student,” Hanford said. “So, in the time that Cedric is not at rehearsal, that spot will be empty.”

The thought of quitting one of the other full time has crossed my mind, but the band and community responsibilities that both have are worth the work,” Elisarraraz said. “Walls said: ‘It isn’t all bad. I get to do both, play my trumpet and have fun with friends.’”

Walls said that he takes place in the same sweats, Walls occasionally has to decide to have fun in a different way than with football.”

Walls’ schedule can get pretty hectic. However, he is able to persevere by having his original season for continuing both throughout his high